ROOSEVELT CALL FORMALLY ISSUED

Dixon Gives Forth Statement
Urging Progressives to Get Together.

MEET IN CHICAGO AUGUST 5

National Progressive Provisional Committee Prepares to Name the Colonel for President—Document in Detail.

New York, July 8.—Reaffirming "Thou Shalt Not Steal" as one of the cardinal principles of this campaign, the national progressive provisional committee has issued the formal call for the convention at which it is planned to name Theodore Roosevelt once again for president.

Chicago is the place and August 5 the date. Here is what Manager Joseph M. Dixon described as the latest "declaration of independence."

Statement as Given Out.

"To the people of the United States without regard to past political differences, who through repeated betrayals, realize that today the power of the crooked political bosses and of the privileged classes behind them is so strong in the two old party organizations that no helpful movement in the real interests of our country can come out of either;

"Who believe that the time has come for a national progressive movement—a nation-wide movement—on non-sectional lines, so that the people may be served in sincerity and truth by an organization unfettered by obligation to conflicting interests;

"Who believe in the right and capacity of the people to rule themselves, and effectively to control all the agencies of their government, and who hold that only through social and industrial justice, thus secured, can honest property find permanent protection;

"Who believe that government by the few tends to become, and has in fact become, government by the sordid influences that control the few;

Note on Legislation.

"Who believe that only through the movement proposed can we obtain in the nation and the several states the legislation demanded by the modern industrial evolution; legislation which shall favor honest business and yet control the great agencies of modern business so as to ensure their being used in the interest of the whole people; legislation which shall promote prosperity and at the same time secure the better and more equitable diffusion of prosperity; legislation which shall promote the economic well being of the honest farmer, wage worker, professional man and business man alike, but which shall at the same time strike in efficient fashion—and not merely pretend to strike—at the roots of privilege in the world of industry no less than in the world of politics;

"Who believe that only this type of wise industrial evolution will avert industrial revolution;

"Who believe that wholesome party government can come only if there is wholesome party management in a spirit of service to the whole country and who hold that the commandment delivered at Sinai, 'Thou Shalt Not Steal' applies to politics as well as to business.

Chicago Meeting Place.

"To all in accord with these views a call is hereby issued by the provisional committee under the resolution of the mass meeting held in Chicago on June 22 last, to send from each state a number of delegates whose votes in the convention shall count for as many votes as the state shall have senators and representatives in congress to meet in convention at Chicago on the 5th day of August, 1912, for the purpose of nominating candidates to be supported for the positions of president and vice-president of the United States."

Many notable names were appended to the call.

Forty States Represented.

"You will see," said Senator Dixon, who promulgated the call, "that 40 of the 48 states are represented in the call. There can be no doubt that ultimately North and South Carolina, Arkansas, Delaware, Maine, Nevada, Idaho and Mississippi will be represented at Chicago at a convention which will be the first perhaps in the history of our government that is not either dominated or at least influenced by the office holding clique."

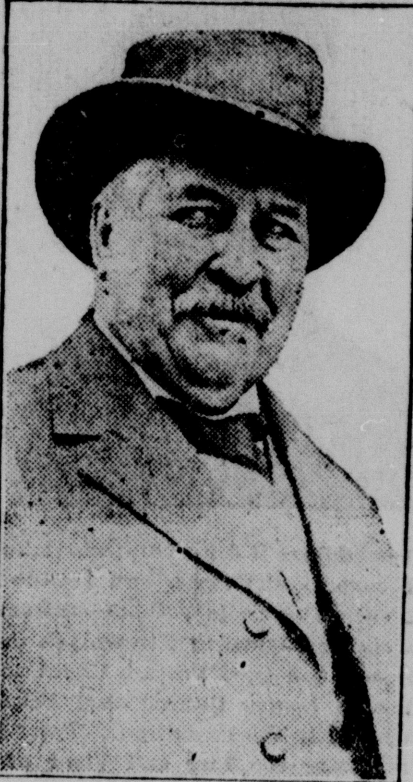

"What is to be the method of selecting delegates—by primaries?"

"That will depend upon what kind of a law governing the choice of delegates prevails in the various states. We shall put state and congressional tickets up in every state."

RESUME LAYING BRICK.

The masons resumed work on the Loftus & O'Connell building this afternoon after a layoff of several days owing to the non-arrival of brick.

This is a new photograph of United States Senator Catron of New Mexico, looking his pleasantest as a result of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for president by the Democrats.

MRS. ELLEN SCOTT WAS FOUND GUILTY

WOMAN WAS FINED $150 AND COSTS—KATE BODEN FINED $75 AND COSTS.

It took the jury in the case of the City of Dixon vs. Mrs. Ellen Scott but a very short time Saturday night to decide that the defendant was guilty of the misdemeanor with which she was charged, the reports from the jury room being to the effect that the twelve men were unanimous in their decree of guilty on the first ballot taken.

The case did not go to the jury until after supper, and accordingly there were not many in the court room when the jury returned a verdict of guilty, and fixed the fine at $150 and costs.

Mrs. Boden Pleaded Guilty.

Mrs. Kate Boden, another of the defendants in the cases brought by the city, appeared before Justice Hanneken this morning and entered a plea of guilty. She was fined $75 and costs.

ENLARGE POOL HALL.

Arrangements have been completed for the enlargement and improvement of the Lynds pool and billiard parlor which, when completed, will be greatly appreciated by the patrons of that establishment. An arch is to be put through to the basement of the Huguet buildings, where five additional pool tables will be installed. A rest and reading room will also be provided.

FINE RESTAURANT FIXTURES.

Charles Krug returned yesterday from Moline, where he has been selecting the furniture for the new restaurant he will open in the Aschenbrenner-Spencer building when that structure is completed. Mr. Krug reports that he has selected the finest solid oak fixtures he could find, and he promises to disclose something exceptionally attractive when he opens the place.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT.

The regular meeting of the city council will be held this evening, and if it is possible to prepare the ordinance for the North Ottawa macadam by the time of meeting, that measure will be presented and passed at the session.

SHOULD SPECIFY KIND OF FIRE.

Chief Coffey of the Dixon fire department requests that during the hot weather, when grass fires are so numerous, that parties reporting the fires of that nature shall specify "grass fire" when calling the department, thus saving the trouble of taking the hook and ladder truck to the fire.

BROWNS PLAY IN LADD SUNDAY.

Manager Valle of the Browns has signed for a game of baseball at Ladd on Sunday, July 28, and he will make a special effort to pick a team capable of defeating the Ladd organization, which has not lost a game this year.

A part of the beach will be roped in for children and all who wish to learn the art of swimming, diving, life saving, water sports and floating.

For the present the bath house will be open from 1 to 5 p. m. Bath house and swimming beach will be closed on Sundays. If enough of the patrons of the beach desire it, the bath house and beach will be open both morning and evening in addition to the afternoon.

Prof. H. C. Eissner, principal of the Sublette public school, but formerly physical director of the Y. M. C. A. and Dixon College, will have charge of the bathing beach and bath house and will be the instructor in swimming. TAFT SHOULD DECLINE

Kenyon Suggests New Committee Pass on Delegates.

Iowa Senator Would Have President Stay Acceptance of Nomination Pending Verdict of New Body.

Washington, July 8.—Senator Kenyon, Progressive Republican of Iowa, who declined to follow Colonel Roosevelt into a third party, expressed the opinion that President Taft should not accept the Republican nomination until the new Republican national committee has passed on the title to the seats of 78 delegates to the Chicago convention which were contested by the Roosevelt leaders.

Should President Taft take this position Senator Kenyon says he can save the Republican party by allaying the unrest in Republican ranks caused by reports that the president's nomination was obtained fraudulently.

When the convention notification committee waits on President Taft, as Senator Kenyon views it, the president should decline to accept the nomination except on the condition that the newly organized national committee pass on the titles of the alleged tainted delegates or order new elections for delegates in the districts or states concerned in the contests. Should enough new delegates be elected to affect the result of the Chicago convention, then Senator Kenyon would have the nominating convention reassemble and the process of nominating a Republican candidate gone through again.

Governor Hadley of Missouri favors the plan in a general way and Senator Cummins holds similar views, it is said.

FALL RIVER BOAT RAMS BATTLESHIP

U. S. Dreadnaught New Hampshire Damaged by Steamship Commonweath.

1,000 PASSENGERS IN PANIC

No One Injured, But Two Vessels Are Badly Smashed—Watertight Compartments Save Lives—Two Other Ships Collide.

Newport, R. I., July 8.—In a dense fog the steamer Commonwealth of the Fall River line, while proceeding to Fall River from New York with 1,000 passengers on board, rammed the U. S. battleship New Hampshire, tearing away the latter's stern and crushing her own bow.

The crash brought the passengers of the Commonwealth out of their cabins in alarm and there was momentary danger of panic, but the officers allayed the fears and the excitement was soon over.

Captain Oliver of the New Hampshire sent a wireless to the Commonwealth asking if assistance was needed. The crew of the New Hampshire were at their posts ready for immediate rescue duty, but the Commonwealth replied: "No, thanks; no assistance required." The Commonwealth proceeded back to Newport. Watertight Compartments Save Lives.

The watertight compartments had undoubtedly saved a terrible catastrophe on the Commonwealth. Wireless Operator Whitehead of the Commonwealth used his head well, as the big passenger steamer struck the battleship, by sending out the S. O. S. distress signal, which was picked up by the battleships Florida, Louisiana, Kansas and Iowa. Not a life was lost nor was anyone injured.

The New Hampshire was anchored in her proper position off the training station. Lieut. Harry Campbell, officer of the deck, suddenly caught a glimpse of the Commonwealth coming bow on towards the New Hampshire's stern.

Hits Warship With Crash. Realizing that a collision was imminent, Lieutenant Campbell quickly sounded the "collision drill" signal, the bulkhead doors on the battleship closing simultaneously with the signal. The doors had barely swung to when the big liner hit the battleship with a resounding crash.

The stern of the New Hampshire was cut through above the protective deck and through the after compartments of both gun and berth decks. Captain Oliver smiled grimly as he saw that his own cabin, which he had vacated just a few moments before, was a complete wreck.

The New Hampshire will go at once to the Brooklyn navy yard for repairs. It is estimated that it will require two months to make her seaworthy again. The woodwork on the Commonwealth is badly damaged and she will be laid up some time, it is thought, for repairs.

Another Collision.

Newport, R. I., July 8.—At about the same hour that the liner Commonwealth rammed the battleship New Hampshire, the steamships Bunker Hill and the Massachusetts, both of the Metropolitan Steamship company's line, came into collision at the entrance to the sound. Nobody was injured, but there was great excitement on board the Massachusetts for a time.

NOTICE TO WATER CONSUMERS.

The excessive hot and dry weather makes it absolutely necessary that the rules and regulations of the Water Company regarding lawn sprinkling shall be strictly complied with. In many towns all sprinkling has been prohibited, but we hope this will not be necessary in Dixon if the consumers will obey the rules. The hours for sprinkling are the same as in the past—from 6 o'clock until 8 in the morning and from 5 until 7 in the evening.

A young wife was in tears a few mornings ago when her mother called. When asked what was the matter she replied that her husband was out late the night before and had been to a drinking party.

Strides of Science.

There was a thin and nervous woman who could not sleep. She visited her physician and he said:

"Did you eat anything before going to bed?"

"Oh, no, doctor," the patient replied.

"Well," replied the doctor, "just keep a glass of milk and some biscuit beside you and every night the last thing that you do, take a light meal."

"But, doctor," cried the lady, "you told me on no account to eat anything before retiring."

"Pooh, pooh!" said the doctor. "That was three months ago. Science has made enormous strides since then."

Cows Tried for Murder.

Old documents of the middle ages tell us of numerous cases where animals were put on trial for serious offenses charged against them. For example, in 1370 three cows were tried for having killed a boy; the whole herd were arrested as accomplices. All were discharged but the guilty three, these being condemned to be executed. The sentence was pronounced by the duke of Burgundy—Our Dumb Animals.

A good deal of ingratitude was manifested in the late democratic national convention. Champ Clark was always the devoted follower of Colonel Bryan. He always stood for Bryan and campaigned for him, yet Bryan tossed Clark in the air when he most needed the help of the Peerless Leader. Then there was Oscar Underwood, whom Clark made floor leader of the house of representatives. Oscar had a bunch of delegates that he could have swung to Clark and nominated him, but he held to them in the vain hope that he could get the nomination himself. Gratitude occupies a very small space in politics.

CURED BY A NATIVE HERB

On board a vessel bound for India recently a man was bitten by a poisonous reptile; both the ship doctor and a famous surgeon failed to control the poison, fast spreading through his system.

In a day the vessel reached port. An Indian medicine man was sent for, who produced a native herb which quickly allayed the poison and the man's life was saved.

Roots and herbs are nature's cure for disease. That great remedy for female ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had its origin in the roots and herbs of the field, tons of which are now consumed yearly in making it.

This Statement

I make a special study of muscular unbalance of the eyes. I have special tests and exercises for developing run down muscles and straightening cross eyes without drugs or operation. If you have weak convergence or a lack of nerve tone to the muscles that pull the eye from the far point of vision to the near point, it is impossible to fit the eye with glasses that will give satisfaction to the wearer. You cannot with comfort fit a hyperopic eye (far sighted) with exophoria (turning out) or a tendency to turn out. If you correct one you must correct the other. My system is successful in developing weak muscles, as my entire attention is given to the care of the eyes and the fitting of glasses, with office rooms equipped with modern instruments, exclusively conducted for that purpose.

Some Jumper.

Ben Snyder should have been taken to Sweden by the promoters of the Olympic team, for Ben, is quite some jumper. He demonstrated that yesterday afternoon, and it is now apparent that the managers of the team made a mistake in not taking him.

Yesterday Mr. S. was seated on a chair in front of his ice cream factory. The chair was out in the street and the occupant of said chair was seated comfortably thereon, with his feet resting easily on the curb.

Quietly, like a thief in the night, a motorcycle approached from the southward. The driver of the motorcycle let his machine coast while he slid easily up behind the chair in which Mr. Snyder was so contentedly resting. Then something happened. Just as the cycle was directly behind the quietly dreaming occupant of the chair, the driver opened the engine wide and incidentally and simultaneously he opened the cut-out (which gentle reader, when opened, allows an unearthly noise to escape).

Mr. Snyder heard the noise, but he didn't know what it was, consequently he got out of that immediate vicinity the quickest way he knew how—which was jumping. Eye witnesses say he was fully 6 feet from the chair when he cut loose to come down. By that time the motorcycle was around the corner, which, however, has nothing to do with the fact that Mr. Snyder is, as we have before asserted, quite some jumper.

YANKEE RUNNERS ARE VICTORIOUS

Four Americans Sweep Honors in Big Sprint at Olympiad.

FEAT NEVER BEFORE EQUALLED

Craig, Meyer and Lippincott Takes First Three Places With Belote Fourth—Crowd Wild Over Men From United States.

Stockholm, July 8.—One, two, three, four was the way the Americans finished in the first track event of the Olympiad, the 100 meter dash. Immediately after the finish three American flags were run up on lofty poles at the end of the stadium, denoting that the United States men had won first, second and third places, or a total of six points in the grand summary.

It was the first time in the history of Olympic contests that three flags of the same country had been raised at the end of a single event and the big crowd that packed the stadium went wild with enthusiasm for the United States.

The hero of the second day was Ralph Craig of Detroit and Michigan university, who won the event in 10.45 seconds, equaling the Olympic record. A yard behind him came Alvah T. Meyer, separated inches from Donald F. Lippincott, who was a like distance ahead of Belote. Last of all was Patching, the speedy South African, who prior to the event, was held in almost sacred fear by the entire American team, including managers and trainers. Howard P. Drew, the Springfield, Mass., schoolboy, was unable to compete on account of the strained thigh muscles.

American Flag at Top.

At the close of the day the American flags still fluttered from two of the high masts, for the next event in which the final competition of the Pentathlon was won by the Indian, James Thorpe, with James J. Donohue of Los Angeles third, making four more points in the summary or a total of ten against three for Sweden, for Lemming's javelin throw Saturday and second in the Pentathlon gave Norway two points. Other nations, particularly England, have not had a look in.

PICK CHAIRMAN TODAY 3 DIE; 7 FATALY HURT

Members of Republican National Committee Meet Taft.

William Barnes of New York and Charles D. Hilles Mentioned to Head President's Campaign.

Washington, July 8.—The Republican national committee, represented by the committee of nine on organization, met with the president today to consider the chairmanship, organization and plans for the coming campaign. Conferences and caucuses preliminary to the business in hand were held at the hotels.

The subcommittee on organization designated by the national committee is composed of Powell Clayton of Arkansas, Newell Sanders of Tennessee, F. W. Estabrook of New Hampshire, William Barnes of New York, John T. Adams of Iowa, Roy O. West of Illinois, Thomas K. Neldringhaus of Missouri, Samuel Perkins of Washington and Alvah H. Martin of Virginia.

There was a good deal of conversation about the national chairmanship. Senator Crane said there had been some talk of Harry Daugherty of Cleveland as possible chairman. The feeling, however, seemed to be that the chairmanship lay between William Barnes of New York and Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the president. Beyond that Mr. Barnes looked to outsiders as the logical manager, because of his prominence in the fight at Chicago.

Joseph B. Keating of Indiana is expected to be a big figure in the campaign. It is understood that he will have a good deal to do with the practical political end of the business while Senator Crane will look after the general financial arrangements.

MRS. DECKER IS DEAD

Famous Philanthropist and Club Woman Succumbs.

End Comes at Adler Sanitarium in Frisco From Complicated Kidney and Heart Trouble.

San Francisco, July 8.—Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, club woman and philanthropist, died at the Adler sanitarium of complicated kidney and heart trouble with which she was seized a week ago.

The end came peacefully. Miss Harriett Platt, her daughter, who had been sent from Denver, was at her bedside. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Buckwater of Springfield, O., friends who have been with Mrs. Decker for the past three weeks, and Mrs. Isabella Dunlap, a cousin, were also at her bedside during the last minutes.

Sarah Platt Decker, club woman, suffrage leader, social worker and philanthropist, was born October 1, 1855, in the little village of Melndoe Falls, Vt. She was a descendant from the famous Adams family of Massachusetts which has given the nation two presidents.

She had been mentioned as a possible candidate for the United States senate from Colorado this fall and even for the presidency. In 1894 she helped organize the Denver Woman's club and later became president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs. In 1898 she was appointed member of the Colorado board of charities and correction. She was twice married.

WILSON TO SEE LEADERS

Governor Will Visit Atlantic City to Confer With Mack.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 8.—Woodrow Wilson will go to Atlantic City tomorrow night for the purpose of holding a conference with Norman E. Mack and other members of the national committee. It is said that Speaker Champ Clark and Representative Underwood will attend if they can get there. The business to be taken up has to do with the organization of the campaign committee and the analysis of the platform to be made in the speech of acceptance. Governor Wilson has abandoned his expressed plan to attend the meeting of the national committee in Chicago, July 15.

Twenty More Injured When Cars on Marion, Bluffton & Eastern Collide in Indiana Town.

Marion, Ind., July 8.—George Dolgouffee of Upland, William Lantz and Benjamin Silvers, both of this city, were killed, seven others were fatally hurt and 20 more or less seriously injured in a collision between two traction cars on the Marion, Bluffton & Eastern line in this city. The cars came together at a point beyond a switch midway between the city and Gethwaite park.

Dolgouffee was dead when found and one of his legs was buried beneath a ton of wreckage, making it impossible to remove his body until a man came forward and chopped off his leg with an ax.

TECHNICALITIES MUST GO.

It is becoming apparent that the purely technical court pleading must go. Ever since President Taft sent to congress his message on the subject of the law's delays there has been an ever increasing sentiment against it. Many members of the bar are now vigorously advocating the proposition that form must give way to common sense.

Some months ago a paper published the story of the Illinois supreme court's decision in what has become famous as the Dumbinski case. It has been freely discussed by legal writers, but in no instance has the criticism been rebuked. Although the opinion is defended as being technically correct, no effort is made to justify it. Lay comment holds it up to public ridicule.

Ten years ago the decision in the Dumbinski case would have been accepted as a matter of course. No newspaper would have thought of questioning it and no legal critic would have intimated that it did not embody the soundest and safest doctrine that could be enunciated by a court. A proposition that the technical point in the case should have been put aside in the interest of justice would have been regarded as treason to legal tradition. Bench and bar would have been horrified by the editorial references which have been made to this finding. Ridiculing the logic of a supreme court decision would, at that period, have been looked upon as little short of sacrilegious.

Times are changing, and they are changing for the legal profession as well as for other folks. The courts are feeling the influence of the new force and some of them have begun to edge away from the old order. Only the other day the Texas supreme court, where precedent has ever been regarded as sacred, threw out a technical objection to a challenged statute—an objection which in the old days would surely have killed the law. In the face of the fact that its title is not according to form the court sustained the state's pure food act.

"This action," said the court in brushing aside the point that the title was not correctly worded, "has but one object, subject and purpose, which is sufficiently stated in the title."

STATE SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE 'T URBANA

A statement was sent out a short time ago from the Associated Press to the papers in the state and country that Walter Burleigh Griffin, of the class of 1899, architectural course, University of Illinois, had won the international competition for plans for the erection of a capitol building for the federal government of Australia.

The competition was much more important than this would seem to signify. The Australian federal government has determined to follow the example of the federal government in the founding and development of Washington, and create a new city as a federal capital, locating it away from other cities and as far out in the open country as Washington was when it was founded.

The federal government of Australia desired a competition among the architects of the world for the planning of this federal city—the suggestion of buildings and their location, the fundamental street plan, and in general a suggestion covering all that was necessary in blocking out in broad outlines the plan of a great city worthy to be the federal capital of this new nation.

It was a problem almost exactly like that before the American people in 1800 when Washington was created as the capital city of our federal union, and Mr. Griffin has had the good fortune to play the part of the celebrated Frenchman, L'Enfant, who drew the foundation plan upon which a city was built which has become one of the most magnificent governmental centers in the world.

Mr. Griffin's problem was even more comprehensive as well as more detailed than L'Enfant's, for he was expected not merely to draw up a street plan and indicate the location of one or two buildings with suggestions for the plans of these, but to draw up in considerable detail the ground plan, provide for the scheme of drainage, for the location of numerous buildings, for the proper handling of the traffic, and the development of the legislative and business sides of the great metropolis.

The fact that Walter Burleigh Griffin graduated in the architectural course of the University of Illinois, serves naturally to call attention to this school and its remarkable growth and services to the country.

If anyone had picked out 30 years ago the most unfavorable place in United States for the location of a course in architecture, no one would have made a mistake in putting it upon the banks of the Boneyard stream in the city of Urbana in Illinois far removed from any specimens of architecture that were worthy of study, with no collection worth visiting within a thousand miles, the outlook for a great school of architecture seemed hopeless.

But Prof. Clifford N. Ricker, who still remains a member of the faculty was, so to speak, the founder and organizer of this school and as he said to one of his friends some years ago, his success is largely to be attributed to the fact that he has been "on the job" ever since. Summer and winter, rain or shine, in storm and quiet, he has persistently hammered away to lay broad and deep the foundations of this school and rear its superstructure high until it has become one of the four greatest schools of architecture in the new world, and has an attendance during the present year, exceeding that of any other school of architecture in this hemisphere. It has become a source of inspiration in every county in the commonwealth, and the traces of its influence are to be seen in the buildings going up throughout this state.

Dr. Ricker has been for many years the chairman of the State Board of Examiners, who have charge of the admission of applicants to the practice of the profession of architecture. In this position he has done much to set standards and elevate the general level of the profession.

In addition to the fact that the School of Architecture in the University of Illinois has, through the influence of its graduates, affected in a very marked way the architecture throughout the commonwealth of Illinois, some of its graduates have achieved distinction in other states. Thus Clarence H. Blackall is recognized as one of the most successful architects in the city of Boston; A. C. Martin of Los Angeles, has won a reputation in the west for his bold work in the construction of concrete domes; while numerous other graduates have done notable work in many different directions. The school has certainly made good and justified in every respect the expenditures which the state has made for its support.

STARS DEFEATED
WEST BROOKLYNLOCAL LADS WON FROM DOWN
COUNTY AGGREGATION
YESTERDAY.

PLAY MT. MORRIS NEXT SUNDAY

Close Score of 8 to 7 in Yesterday's Battle—Game Was a Good One.

The Dixon Stars defeated West Brooklyn, 8 to 7, at the Athletic park yesterday afternoon, and incidentally Charles Keenan won the baseball glove which T. B. Preston offered on Saturday to the first Star who connected for a home run, for Charles slammed one into the river in the fourth inning, ticketed round trip.

The game was more interesting than was anticipated by the fans, for the West Brooklyn team gave the Stars something to do at all times, and Dixon had to play the last half of the ninth to shove the winning run across the pan.

Joe Keenan Hurt.

The Stars were compelled to alter their lineup a little because of an injury to Joe Keenan, their little catcher yesterday morning. Joe mashed a finger, or something, and couldn't work; accordingly Larkins was put behind the rubber. Huber pitched a good game, and Keeler who opposed him during the first part of the contest, also did good work. Long West Brooklyn's star, finished the contest.

The Stars also introduced a good man into the game of whom they are expecting great things. Connors is his name, and during his activities in the contest, Connors demonstrated that he can hit well, run bases, and in fact, play the game. He was good for a single and a home run in his two trips to bat.

Mt. Morris Next Sunday.

Next Sunday the fast Mt. Morris Independents will come to Dixon to take on the Stars, and a game of exceptional interest should result. The score of yesterday's game:

Well, talk about bugs, this summer—the old time potato bug and the hard shell bugs, cucumber and pumpkin bugs and pinch bugs—are there any other? If so, we hope they will go elsewhere. It requires a christian spirit to exterminate them, and patience as well.

FIVE PRINCIPLES FOR A SCOUT CAMP.

Charles B. Horton, Director of Summer Schools and Camps of the Boy Scouts of America, in an article entitled "How to Prepare for a Scout Camp," in the July issue of Boys' Life, the Boy Scouts' Magazine lays down five important principles for Boy Scouts. He says "The first principle for a Scout camp is that every boy will do all he possibly can for himself and consider it a disgrace to have anybody do anything for him that he can do himself.

The second principle is for the Scout to determine to get along with just as few 'bought' things as possible and will make for himself everything he can.

The third principle is that the Scout will see how much he can do for the camp instead of trying to see how much he can get out of doing.

A fourth principle is that while the Scout wishes to learn all he can of campcraft, woodcraft and scoutcraft that he will determine to be an expert in one thing. A Scout ought to aim to be an all-round Scout, but every second-class Scout ought to begin to specialize on some one subject.

A fifth principle is that the Scout will do all he can to help the other fellow."

NATIONAL ANNIVERSARY HYMN.

(Rev. John Williams)
We hail thee America! Land of the free!

The oppress of all nations are looking to thee!
Thy banner unfurled awells with liberty's breeze,
Inviting the down-trod from over the seas.

We hail thee America! Land of the free!
The flag of our country is glorious to see!
The world is more happy because it is here,
Her burdens to lessen, her people to cheer.

We hail the glad day of our Nation's birth;
The bravest, the truest, the richest on earth,
Her mountains and valleys and plains still attract,
Her rivers and woodlands with riches are packed.

We hail thee America! Land of our birth!
And Freedom, we hail thee! God-given to earth!
The poor and oppress from the ends of the world,
Find rest where the Stars and the Stripes are unfurled!

DISHES FOR THE VEGETARIAN.

For the increasing number of those who are eschewing meat for one reason or another, and who are studying food values, in order to choose intelligently when arranging menus, the following suggestions may prove helpful.

It is never wise to make a radical change all at once in one's diet; but bring it about by degrees. There are many foods of high value in protoid that are not nearly as expensive as meat. Among the foods that may take the place of meat in the diet are nuts, cheese, macaroni, rice, beans, peas, oatmeal, entire wheat and graham, as well as the whole kernel of wheat cooked until tender. These foods save the meat bills.

Here are a few menus that will be suggestive: Breakfast—Fruit, cereal, corn cakes, maple syrup and coffee. Dinner—Baked beans, brown bread, apple and celery salad, coffee souffle and coffee. When a green salad is used a custard for dessert will supply the food value needed.

Mock Fowl.—To a cupful of bread crumbs add a cup of water and stir over the fire until boiling hot. Take from the heat and add three hard-cooked eggs, chopped fine, a cup of pecan meats or hickory nut meats, a cup of cold boiled rice, a teaspoon and a half of salt, half a tablespoonful of grated onion and the same amount of powdered sage. Mix well and stir in two well-beaten eggs, mold into the form of a fowl, reserving a portion for the wings and legs, stick in a piece of macaroni for the bone and press them against the body of the fowl. Form the wings and press them against the body. Brush with butter and sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake in a quick oven, basting two or three times with melted butter. Serve with apple or gooseberry sauce.

Another dinner menu for the meatless eater is peanut soup, potatoes, egg salad, string beans, stewed figs and cup cakes. Another—Cream of tomato soup, pea timbales, potatoes or rice, fruit salad and graham pudding.

Scalloped Cheese.—Cheese in different forms is an excellent substitute for meat. Butter a baking dish; put in a layer of bread cut in squares, add a layer of cheese cut small, dust with salt and pepper, add more bread, using half a loaf to a cup of cheese. Beat two eggs light, add a pint of milk and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

 —William Morris.

CHEESE DISHES.

Cheese is very acceptable in an endless variety of combinations, as sandwiches. A sandwich is prepared thus: Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add half a cup of grated American cheese, two tablespoonfuls of anchovy essence, one-fourth of a teaspoon of paprika and mustard, and one-half cup of olives chopped. Season with salt and spread between thin slices of bread.

Cheese Squares.—Prepare a pie crust, roll out and spread thinly with soft butter and sprinkle little dots of cheese no larger than a pea all over it; then lay over this another sheet of crust, press slightly, then cut in two-inch squares and bake. Prick with a fork before baking.

Cheese Balls.—Roll seasoned cream cheese into balls and roll in chopped nuts or parsley or in paprika to serve with the salad at dinner.

Cheese Souffle.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one and a half tablespoonfuls of flour, and when well mixed add a half cupful of milk. Season with salt, cayenne to taste and add a cup of chopped cheese; stir over the heat until the cheese melts, remove and cool and add the yolks of three eggs well beaten, and fold in carefully the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake a half hour in a slow oven.

Cheese Salad.—Take two cream cheeses, soften with cream, and add a half cup of grated American cheese. Soak three-fourths of a tablespoon of gelatine in a tablespoonful of cold water, add a tablespoonful of boiling water and set the dish over hot water until the gelatine is dissolved. Add salt and paprika, the cheese, and a cup of cream whipped. Turn into a mold and garnish with red peppers and asparagus tips. Serve with French dressing.

VISITS NOTED CITY

Writer Tells of Scenes Where Jeanne d'Arc Died.

Rouen, France.—Flora, Dear: It seems almost cruel to write of Rouen, when you were denied the pleasure of visiting here. You were ever a staunch admirer of Jeanne d'Arc, and we planned to cover the scenes of her triumphs and misfortunes, since our first history days.

The medietate city has quite measured up to my expectations. Jack and I explored the glorious old Gothic cathedral from the crypt to the belfry tower. What a wonderful specimen of architecture it is! We made several fairly good sketches of the nave as well as the exterior.

The tomb of Richard Coeur de Lion is much defaced by vandals who collect souvenirs.

In the Place de la Pucelle stands a statue of the Maid of Orleans, over the exact spot where she was burned.

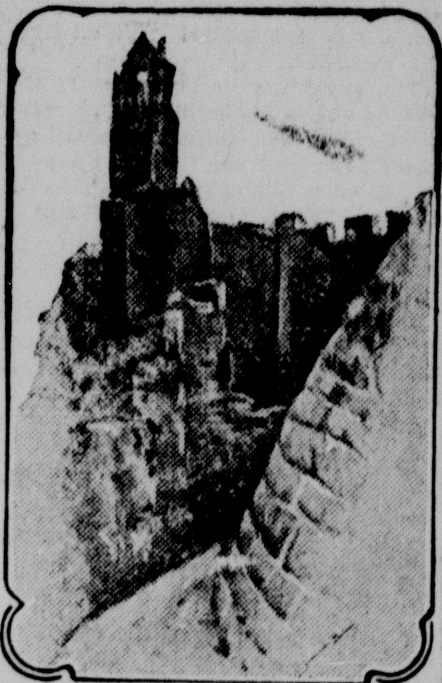

The people of Rouen hold her very name in sacred veneration and relate many traditions associated with her tragic life.

The surrounding country is extremely alluring, and each day we tramp for miles. The well-kept fields of grain or vegetables each has its border of field-flowers blooming in riotous profusion. Poppies, daisies, buttercups, and bluets grow, apparently, to garland some child's hat.

One afternoon, feeling rather tired and hungry, after walking six miles, we stopped at a farm cottage and procured milk and fresh bread. The good wife, a typical belle of Normandy, was most kind to us. She spread our feast in the vine-clad summer house of her lovely garden.

In the distance we could plainly distinguish the tower where Jeanne d'Arc was imprisoned for so many weary months. Jack pityingly narrated a few instances concerning her imprisonment which history fails to relate. In the midst of his conversation, our hostess disappeared. She returned, however, almost immediately, holding in her hand a small box of antique copper. Giving this to Jack, she requested him to examine its contents.

Upon opening the box he drew forth a rosary, much discolored from age, the beads being evidently of ivory. After murmuring a short prayer, she gave us the history of the rosary. One of her ancestors was the keeper of Jeanne d'Arc during the period of imprisonment at Rouen. He was devoted to this unfortunate maid, and did everything in his power to relieve her suffering. He supplied her with appetizing food and at the risk of his life delivered messages to her friends. During the long siege of her trial he faithfully served her in every manner, and when the Inquisition finally condemned her to death at the stake he was heart-broken. The bishop of Beauvais ordered her Bible and rosary to be destroyed, denying her the consolation of religion, so far as his power extended. Crushed and humiliated, she awaited her terrifying fate. The keeper, at her request, procured a rosary from a sympathetic priest, who was powerless to aid the maid. She was quite overcome by the keeper's devotion, and blessed him many times.

Finally, the day set for the awful event arrived and the innocent victim of superstition was led forth from her prison tower to pay the price of her service to Charles VII. of France. When the light had been applied to the fagots and the flames rose about the frail form of Jeanne d'Arc, the unrelenting bishop discovered the rosary suspended at her side. He ordered a priest to remove it, but as he drew near the saintly Jeanne the flames formed a forbidding barrier, which no one could brave.

The rosary is the cherished treasure of the little woman, who is the only surviving member of her family. She claims that the rosary possesses the power of consolation, however great the sorrow may be.

Dear Jean, you should know her! She is the personification of peace and repose.

We leave for Paris in a week. Do arrange to join us there! Ever lovingly,

JEAN DOUGLAS.

Working Hours

Burdens of Labor Should be Lightened

By JAMES DUNCAN, BOSTON

NO ARBITRARY limit can be set at this time to the length of the workday. The nine-hour day was thought to be an immense stride for labor in its progress toward ideal conditions, and the eight-hour day now is justly regarded as a great achievement. Evolution, however, will determine whether and how soon the eight-hour day may be shortened. Some persons who are qualified by study and observation to judge are said to believe that if economic conditions were now more scientifically regulated the average workday would not need to exceed four hours in duration.

In a recent address the president of Princeton college said that throughout the world today the subject of economics is receiving more attention from those who read and study than all other subjects combined. This being true, it is obvious that the sentiment of civilized man is constantly developing strength against the great sources of economic waste, among which war may be mentioned first. With the growth of this wholesome public feeling everywhere against the wasteful and destructive forces of society, it is inevitable that the burdens of labor should be lightened, since military glory and aggrandizement pays its bills out of the pockets of the workmen.

The product of labor that is consumed to satisfy rational demands does not strain, and never has strained the productive capacity of mankind. The heaviest tax on toil has been created by the necessities which absolute waste has caused or insatiable greed has exacted.

Some remarkable results have attended the reduction of the hours of labor. When this reduction first was agitated its opponents argued that the leisure which the workmen would have could only result in an increase of crime and disorder, and especially of drunkenness. It was found, however, that not only was no such increase to be discovered, but that an actual and pronounced decrease of all forms of lawlessness was to be noted wherever the shorter workday had been established.

The fact is that the reduction of the hours of labor has been one evidence of the growth in strength of the labor cause, and has been accompanied usually by the success of the movement for higher wages, and by the improvement of labor in other ways.

The charge is sometimes made that workmen have favored the eight-hour day less for the leisure that it provides than for the opportunity which it offers for additional pay for overtime. But this is not true. In all well-regulated trade agreements there is a provision for time and a half for overtime and double time for holidays, not, however, because the workman has any desire to work overtime, but for the purpose of discouraging the overtime practice by the employer.

The workman has developed new interests and activities, to which his leisure has been devoted. New wants have been created, calling for the development of new sources of supply, and the world has profited industrially, socially and spiritually by the change. The process of improvement will not stop, but go on, and what this evolution may bring forth remains to be seen.

Insect Kills Many Pests in Small Flats

By Dr. A. J. Allen, Chicago

The house centipede has but recently come to Chicago. Another name for it is "skink centipede," from the tangled, thread-like appearance of the numerous legs, which easily detach themselves when the animal is captured or crushed under foot.

The house centipede belongs to the same family as the very poisonous centipede of the southern states and its home was originally in that part of the country, but since we have continuous summer conditions here in our warm flat buildings the house centipede has gradually moved northward until it has become very abundant in a climate that, under the housing conditions of fifty years ago, would have precluded the possibility of its presence.

An examination of the head of this centipede will reveal a pair of strong jaws that are used against enemies and for the purpose of capturing small insects for food. It considers the fly a great delicacy and, besides this, it eats fleas, mosquitoes, clothes moths, roaches and other small household pests. It hunts its food mostly at night.

The house centipede has seldom been known to bite a person and if in self-defense it should happen to pinch the baby's finger or toe, the swelling produced, if any, could be quickly alleviated by an application of ammonia.

Most household pests live upon scraps of meat and vegetables left about the sink and pantry. If no inducements are held out to these pests the house centipede will be an effective ally in ridding the premises of the detestable things and then in turn will go hence in quest of other worlds to conquer.

Many Little Things of This World

By Sarah Montgomery

I would rather pay $20 or $30 a month to rent in a neighborhood that saves my individuality than own a home in a row of soulless cottages.

I may say that my own husband earns about $18 a week and there are five in my family.

I know a woman who toiled and saved until she now owns a fine home. She also has a resulting semi-invalidism. She never had time to read spiritual things. They did not interest her. She had to have property—a home for her old age. Today she is a most unhappy, discontented woman. She cannot read, as it tires or bores her. She knows no spiritual uplift; no peace that comes only from within. Books are an unknown quantity and she is a mental beggar.

I have not money saved nor property, but I have the things worth while, which will sustain me when I'm old.

ACETYLENE FOG-HORN SIGNAL

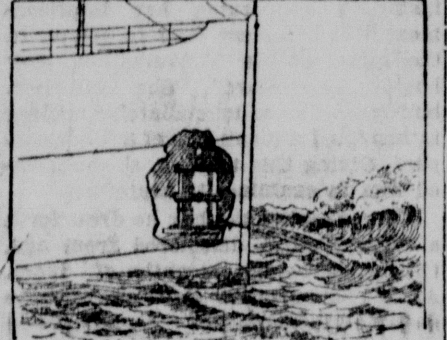

Automatically Controlled Buoy or Beacon Used for Year Without Being Given Attention.

An automatic acetylene fog-horn is being worked out by Gustav Dalen, the Swedish inventor of the automatically lighted buoy or beacon. The light-controlling device is a sun valve, by which the light of day shuts off the acetylene from the burner and the appearance of darkness turns it on and relights it. A buoy equipped with this valve has been regularly lighted for more than a year without attention or renewal of its supply of calcium carbide. An acetylene fog-horn already patented by the inventor in Canada consists of a rotating disk, carrying on its periphery small pockets containing gas, and a horn in front of which an electric spark explodes the gas. Each pocket passes an acetylene jet before reaching the spark, the acetylene thus taken up forming an explosive mixture with the air. By changing the rate of the disk's rotation, the rapidity of the explosions can be varied to any number up to 500 or more per second, and the tone produced by the horn as a result of the explosions can be adjusted as desired by a suitable regulation of the speed. To cause the horn to operate when needed, and only then, has been the serious problem. One plan is to have it set in action by a tuning fork responding to the vibrations of a steamer's whistle, and with this arrangement an approaching steamer in a fog would, on sounding its whistle, get the fog-horn signal indicating the locality.

MEANS OF SUBDUING WAVES

Automatic Apparatus Being Manufactured for Discharging Oil on Sea During Stormy Weather.

A special automatic apparatus for discharging oil on the sea in stormy weather as a means of subduing the waves is being manufactured by a British concern. The apparatus consists of a cast-iron oil reservoir above a vertical cylinder. A heavy piston, working in the cylinder, attached to a tubular rod and provided with a spring, ejects the oil onto the water.

Oil on Troubled Waters.

A handwheel on the spindle rod is used to raise the piston when the cylinder is being filled with oil from the reservoir.

The apparatus is mounted in the bow as shown in the illustration, says the Popular Mechanics. Two small delivery pipes protrude through the bow, one on each side of the stem. The discharge of each pipe is about half a gallon per hour, but this may be varied according to requirements, density of oil, etc.

Oil has been utilized for many years as a means of subduing the waves, and in many instances has saved vessels from disaster.

THE MATINEE IDOL

By MARY THOMPSON

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"But you are engaged," said Letty Blair, mischievously to her friend Alicia Conover, at an afternoon performance of a popular play.

"What would George Everton think of a flirtation with a matinee idol?"

"I don't care," responded Alicia.

"Being engaged isn't like being married. I am not going to lose my independence altogether, and besides, Letty, you know I am not flirting with him any more than you."

Her chum shook her head protestingly. She was too fond of Alicia to argue, but facts were facts.

"Oh, I'll admit," she said, "that I am just as enthusiastic as you, but it's as plain as the nose on my face that he isn't attracted to me in the least. It's to you that he throws those wonderful glances. I shouldn't be surprised if he addressed his lines to you before long."

"Oh, Letty, I should die with mortification. Do you really think he would dare? Let us go out after this act."

"And miss the most exciting act of the play? Not for worlds. I was only joking. Look he's making love to the heroine. Let's see him do it."

The two girls watched the play with kindling admiration for the masculine star. In Letty's case the infatuation was a most transitory one. She was a confirmed theater-goer, and had fallen in love and out again with every actor she had seen. Alicia was different. She was charmingly pretty and level-headed, and that she could develop into anything as feather-brained as a matinee girl was unbelievable.

After boarding school she had taken her place in society. The only child of a well-to-do couple, she was content with some of the best families in the state, and found life very pleasant.

After two winters of teas, dances and festivities of every description she had met George Everton and had entered into her first really serious love affair. It was the seriousness of it that was poor Alicia's undoing. George Everton had become absorbed in his father's business after returning from college intent upon proving that he was capable of being made a junior partner.

He was deeply in love with Alicia. All of his thoughts and ambitions revolved around her and her future. Alicia was proud of his ability and gloried in his physical achievements, but as the novelty of their engagement wore off, he had settled into a take-it-for-granted state that she resented with all of the strength of her unsuspected romantic temperament.

If her head had not been filled with nonsense Alicia would have appreciated George Everton's love at its full value. His expressive dark eyes always shone with tenderness as he greeted her, and his touch was almost sacred. Tonight he kissed her softly on her braided hair.

"Such a pretty little sweetheart," he murmured. But the Evertons had never been demonstrative people, and their son was content to allow his affection a brief expression.

"I brought you over a book for your shelf. Thought you would rather have it than a silver gimcrack or flowers."

"Did you?" rather coolly.

"If you would prefer something else I can change it," he exclaimed, puzzled at her manner.

"I wouldn't think of troubling you for such a trifling matter."

He passed the formality of the remark unnoticed, intent upon a more important subject.

"Don't you think, Alicia, that we might set the date for our wedding? Father and mother want to see us married before they go to California."

"Of course," tartly, "your father and mother are to be considered first."

"You are the first consideration, naturally," he replied gravely, "but I did not think you had any reason for delaying it, have you?"

"I am afraid, I don't love you," she said, hesitatingly. In her heart she was not afraid, but the words gave her a dramatic thrill which was enjoyable. George Everton got up from his chair slowly. His face was white.

Angry Voices Startled Her.

"That is different, of course," he said quietly. "Do you mean it?"

Alicia nodded. Before she recovered her voice the room was empty and quiet, but for the little French clock on the mantel.

The next afternoon she dressed for the matinee with a reckless abandon. In spite of her efforts to forget, George Everton's serious face would come between her and the mirror.

"I will simply put him out of my life," she said tragically, pinning a huge bouquet of violets on her fur coat as she joined Letty Blair.

"You are simply stunning," said her friend, enviously. "I don't blame Harry Esmond for being in love with you."

Alicia laughed. "I doubt whether he has ever really seen me." But a note that was delivered to her after the theater compelled her to think otherwise. It read:

"Dear Lady of the Violets:—

"Will you not meet me at the stage entrance as soon as this performance is over and allow me the pleasure of telling you what an inspiration you are to me? Something tells me that behind your beautiful eyes there is a soul akin to mine. Truly,

"HARRY ESMOND."

Alicia and Letty hurried into a nearby tearoom to decide upon a course of action.

"Go, of course," advised Letty. "I am crazy to see what he looks like on the street." Together they went back to the stage door where a man with very dark eyebrows and lashes was waiting for them. He wore a very much padded tan overcoat with a fur collar.

"The gods are good," he said joyfully. "Shall we walk down the avenue this pleasant afternoon?"

The girls found themselves swinging along while the actor plied them with questions which would have aroused Alicia's suspicions under ordinary conditions. As it was she was trying to realize that she was actually talking to a man whose name was on the bill in huge letters.

Before leaving he bent over Alicia. "To-morrow," he said in a low tone, "you must take dinner with me alone, just you."

She murmured assent and sped home. As she rode downtown next day she remembered that he had forgotten to appoint a meeting place or she had forgotten it.

"I will go behind the scenes," she said. "It will do no harm for once."

"Yes, miss," said the man at the door. "He is in his dressing-room, but you must wait here until I send in a message."

To escape the curious glances of the stage hands she slipped into a recess of the wings, and was waiting quietly when angry voices on the other side of the thin partition startled her. The man's tone was cold and sneering, the woman's high and shrill.

"You baby snatcher," the latter cried, "I will write to her father."

"You had better confine your dramatics to the boards, Clem," the man replied coldly. "They would be better appreciated there. I am going to do as I please. The girl's a peach and I don't intend to have my fun spoiled."

At the coarse words the scales dropped from Alicia's eyes. She looked for a way to escape, but seeing none, turned disdainfully to meet this vulgar loafer whose friendship she was suddenly ashamed of.

He came up on her suddenly, but his equanimity was undisturbed.

"Why away in here, little girl?" he said insolently, taking her arm. "I did—"

"Stop," she ordered. "I have made a mistake. I was to meet a gentleman. He is not here." Dashing by him she found the street door and, hailing a taxicab, gave the chauffeur an address.

George Everton, going over his books, after the regular business of the day, was surprised by a swish of draperies and the pressure of two soft hands on his eyes.

"Alicia," he exclaimed, and as he was released, a tear splashed on his hand, and he looked into a very repentant face.

"I don't see why you want to marry such a little idiot, as I am, George," she said contritely, "but if you do, I am ready."

"Barkles was never in it with me, Alicia," her lover replied, his arm closing around her.

She Was Willing.

The man was one of the sort that women like because of their awkwardness, ugliness, masculinity, gaucherie and all that. His feet were too big for his legs, though his legs were enormous. His chest was too big for his head, though he wore a 7½ size in hats.

He was like a St. Bernard pup, but older than any young dog.

He had never been at a regular dance before. The girls looked like delicate flowers to him, and he hardly dared to touch one of them. He looked to the girls like a new idea—and they hoped he'd arrive. He did, after a minute or two. He waddled across the floor, made a stand in front of the little girl, and said, more or less ungrammatically:

"Can I dance with you?"

She was rattled, but she answered with a smile:

"I don't know, but I like you well enough to let you try!"—Cleveland Plaindealer.

Abnormal Boy.

"I'm worried about my boy."

"What's the matter with him?"

"When I left home yesterday morning I told him to clean up my lawn, and when I got home last evening I found that he had done it."

AT A CHICAGO SUMMER RESORT.

Strange Man—Beg pardon, but was I not engaged to you last summer?

Strange Lady—No, sir, but your mistake is excusable. You were married to me year before last.

He Regretted It.

"I'm sorry about this," said the Commander of the Fleet, sadly watching the last of the enemy's ships as it sank.

"Yes, it is too bad to think of all those brave fellows going down," said his Aide, "but think of the glorious victory we have won."

"That's it," replied the Commander. "I'll never be able to hold my head up among my friends again, now that I have become a hero. I'll bet that I am already being accused of enough crimes to send me to prison for life."

"We are pleased," said the president of the bank to the young clerk, "to notice that you always strike an exact and correct balance with no trouble at all."

"Thank you," answered the new clerk, "I think I inherit the talent."

"How is that?"

"Well, my mother was a tightrope walker and my father a trick bicyclist."

PERILS OF ELEPHANT HUNT

Hunters More Afraid of Stampede Than of Being Attacked by Huge Beasts.

We were now in the bend of the Niger, and approaching Lake Nian-gaye, a fine sporting country, writes Capt. A. H. W. Haywood in the Wide World Magazine. Here I spent nearly three weeks, shifting my little camp as circumstances dictated. It was near the site of an inundated village that I made my headquarters for elephants. These fine beasts used to come and drink at the lake every three or four days, and I was fortunate enough to get two good tuskers here. My first view of these animals was a never-to-be-forgotten one. It was a beautiful moonlight night, and I had sent out my hunters in different directions to bring me early news of elephants coming to drink at the lake, which is a very large one. Suddenly a man appeared, saying that a herd was approaching rapidly, and soon I heard the thud of a multitude of huge feet on the sandy ground. Making a wide circuit to avoid giving them my wind, I cautiously drew close to the lake.

Words cannot adequately describe the beauty of the scene that met my eyes. Some 40 elephants were disporting themselves in the moonlit waters, bathing and douching themselves with water taken up in their trunks. Knowing I should get my chance later, I had plenty of time to single out the best tuskers and mark them down. In the meantime, I lay perfectly still in my concealed position, enjoying this remarkable picture. Having bathed and drunk their fill, the elephants proceeded to retreat leisurely homewards. With a little maneuvering I had no great difficulty in shooting one of the animals I had marked down. Now arrived a dangerous moment. The huge herd, frightened rather than enraged at the report of my rifle and the fall of their comrade, stampeded in all directions. Some half dozen came careering toward me; there was neither time nor space to evade them, and for a moment I thought I must inevitably be trampled under their massive feet. I had flung myself on the ground to be as inconspicuous as possible, when fortunately something made them turn aside. They passed within a few inches of my prostrate body, screaming and trumpeting in terrifying fashion as they thundered by.

RISES GHOSTLIKE IN COURT

Very Much Alive, First Husband Appears in Annulment Suit at Paterson, N. J.

Paterson, N. J.—For ten years looked upon as dead, Ralph Mowerson of Syracuse, N. Y., walked into Vice-Chancellor Stevenson's court and established that he was alive. The suit of John G. Schwartz, secretary and treasurer of the Schwartz Building company, against his wife Hannah for annulment of their marriage was under consideration. Mrs. Schwartz was testifying, when Peter J. McGinnis, counsel for Schwartz, ordered Mowerson to stand up.

"Do you know that man?" the woman was asked. Only a moment before she declared she learned her first husband had died somewhere in the west. Mrs. Schwartz gasped and almost whispered: "Yes, I know that man; he is my husband." She was then excused.

Mowerson testified that he married Hannah E. Strout May 8, 1896, at Tallman, N. Y. Ten years ago he deserted his wife, he admitted, and went to Phillipsburg, Mont. He declared that he had ever caused to be written letters to his wife declaring his death. Mrs. Schwartz testified that she had received a letter from his sister in Idaho telling of his death.

Human Chain Rescues Man.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—One of the most daring rescues in the history of Niagara falls was made by Aran Kevorkian, an Armenian. Wading out waist-deep into the rapids a short distance above the cataract, he pulled to shore with a pike pole the unconscious form of Henry J. Smith of Buffalo.

Kevorkian was assisted by David Gordon and Park Constable Thomas Harrington, who formed a human chain, anchoring the Armenian to the shore and enabling him to resist the current, which was unusually strong owing to the high water.

Dixon Citizens Gladly Testify and Confidently Recommend Doan's Kidney Pills

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Dixon citizen.

John Salzman, 103 Artesian Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "I have no reason to change my good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I publicly expressed some years ago. I had back ache a great deal and pains across my loins. My kidneys did not act regularly and I felt miserable in every way. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Leake Bros. Co's Drug store and they did god work, relieving me. I keep them in the house and whenever I take them, they help me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Saving Grace

By M. McCulloch-Williams

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Esmond tossed the note into a glowing fire with a smile that was not quite pleasant. That was a pity—he had a handsome mouth, one that real smiles became wonderfully.

"So I am chosen for the sacrifice," he said to himself in the mantel mirror. "Hanged if I will be. I won't let myself be made ridiculous galling that gawk—not even for Juliette Grayson."

Man proposes, woman disposes. Just then there came a rattaplan of knocks—a gay voice cried from outside: "Open! In the name of the law! Else we shall break in—we are simply famished."

Inside a minute Esmond had seated in the easiest chairs, where the fire-glow was warmest, yet most beautifully tempered, one very, very pretty creature, made up it seems of blue skies, sunshine and rose leaves, and another tall and dark, pallid and heavy of eye.

"You got my note, of course," the sunny one half chanted. So you know—all about everything! We've been buzzing about since noon, getting folks to promise what we needed without the least coaxing. Now—won't you please, please give us tea? And be sure there is a pot of bread and butter—yes, and jam—and I'd like some ham or cold tongue."

"Anything else?" Esmond asked.

"No! I think not. Yes, now I remember, you may call up Phil Darling and tell him he is wanted to balance you at dinner tomorrow evening."

Juliette broke in imperatively: "Of course not, beloved goose. I don't believe you understand a thing about men—it would never occur to you to find out, this way, just how far gone Jack Esmond really is."

"Love—love him?" Grace asked, breathing hard and reddening a little over the love.

Juliette nodded saucily. "Well enough to marry him when I am good and ready—which won't be for ages. Meantime—the queen will amuse herself. Philip is amusing—you can't deny that, solemn, high-toned lady that you are. Also—there are others, there will be still others, Master Jack may glump all he likes—I made up that word just to fit him. By and by he will have his reward, but men should have nothing they don't earn in full."

Grace looked into the fire. Perhaps it was the flame heat that drew color to her cheeks. Certainly when Esmond came back she was in a sort of transfiguration. Always he had thought her face hard, even wooden. Now the mouth was pathetic, the drooping, dusk-fringed, heavy lids full of infinite appeal. At sight of them his revolt vanished—it would really not be a hardship to play opposite her in the tableaux Juliette was improvising to help a widow—sometime a Grayson household, whose brakeman-husband had been brought home to her crushed out of human shape. Later on there would be money from bigger sources—now the girl-widow and her young baby had only friends to keep the wolf from the door. Sympathy would pack the town hall—of that there was not the least doubt. Sympathy alone, vivid and compelling, had got the better of Grace Avery's natural shyness and made her agree to appear.

She was older than Juliette, as well as taller and richer. Ill-natured folk said falsely the riches were the root of Juliette's liking. Juliette knew of the saying, but having a warm heart and a steady head underneath her lightness, she ignored it. She was truly fond of Grace, also infinitely sorry for her. Grace had grown up in shadow in a tragic household which had revolved about her father, a hopeless and Solid As a Rock!

Here is the absolutely new anchoring device used only on the old reliable Saginaw Silo, which makes it as solid as one piece of granite—immovable as a mountain. It is our Handy Inner Anchoring Hoop, which circles the inside of the silo above the silage and directly opposite the top outside hoop. It supports any silage that might loosen and prevents them falling inward. Once in place, it needs no attention, no adjusting. Cables from anchoring points to ground rods complete support that dynamite could hardly move. No loose staves! No falling in! No blowing down! Write today for details.
